CONCEPT NOTE

Sustainability is one of the defining challenges of our time and requires interdisciplinary understanding, collaboration, and collective action. Climate change, digital transformation, artificial intelligence, migration, social inequalities, and evolving cultural narratives are reshaping societies, education, and human communication. The 2nd International Conference on Humanities and Social Sciences (ICHSS-II 2026) provides an international platform for academicians, researchers, educators, policymakers, professionals, and students to explore the contributions of the humanities and social sciences to a more equitable, inclusive, and sustainable future. The conference invites theoretical, empirical, conceptual, and interdisciplinary contributions from language, literature, education, psychology, home science, media and communication, cultural studies, sociology, gender studies, public policy, technology, and related disciplines. It aims to promote meaningful academic dialogue, knowledge exchange, professional networking, collaborative research, and scholarly publication.

OBJECTIVES

- Promote interdisciplinary research in humanities and social sciences
- Encourage academic dialogue on sustainability and contemporary global challenges
- Foster collaboration among scholars, researchers and institutions
- Explore innovative approaches to teaching, learning and research
- Provide publication opportunities for quality research contributions
- Strengthen international academic networking and partnerships
